Modification to the Solicitation:

1. The University is providing responses to additional question received as of 1/17/2024.

I have a follow up question to question items 2 & 3. Would an electrical contractor be able to subcontract the splices and terminations of the medium voltage? We typically install all the medium voltage "work" but subcontract the splices and terminations.

UMB RESPONSE: No, the University requires the Prime Contractor possess the skill sets for performing medium/low voltage primary tasks.
